 Worth Telling Again.

Waverly Magazine: Twenty years have passed since a certain Bath's captain, entering the port of New York, telegraphed his wife at Bath to join him at the metropolis. He was prepared for a sea voyage. Accordingly a day or two after the arrival of the message saw the wife embarked upon the through train from Bath to Boston, accompanied by an infant child scarcely two years old.

This car was coupled on to the end of the Portland train at Brunswick, and leaving the child asleep, the Captain's wife seized the opportunity to fill the baby's bottle with milk in the depot restaurant. While the mother was intent upon her errand the train slipped quietly out of the station, and when the mother emerged from the restaurant door it was fast disappearing under the Spring-street bridge. Eagerly she explained the situation to the sympathizing group of railroad men who gathered around. Baby and nurse, containing all her money and ticket, were in the fast disappearing train. A hurried council followed, and a plan was instantly formed.

Old No. 23, "The Brunswick," was sidetracked, waiting the passage of the train just gone. Uncle Thompson, the station baggage master at that time, ran hastily to the engine and asked her aid to overtake the flying train. The general Charles, ever ready to aid the cause of any female in distress, volunteered to catch the robber. Hastily filling the firebox with wood from the tender, while Thompson was assisting the woman to mount "the engine, with a command to the switchman to "give us the main line," with hand upon the throttle, No. 13 flew quickly over the switches and commenced her run.

An empty engine chasing a heavy train up "Oak Hill grade," which extends four miles straight away from Brunswick has an easy task, and before they had covered more than half of that distance they could see the object of their pursuit.

To sound his whistle, calling the attention of the train men to the chase, and thereby stop the train, was not part of the programme, fearing that he might run over them should they suddenly stop. He quietly running along the rear of the train, descending the grade, he is soon immediately behind them. Then his tender—for they are running backward—runs against the rear platform of the train, and while the engineer holds her there Thompson, as the woman over the tender, down upon the platform of the car containing the baby, still fast asleep, the mother clasping tightly the bottle of milk.

 Blundering men, instead of admitting their responsibility, try to excuse themselves by throwing the blame on others. A single story illustrates this tendency of human nature, and also the French proverb: "He accuses who excuses himself." On night thieves broke into a rich man's house and carried off all his valuables. On being arrested, they excused their crime by saying that "they were homeless, as the walls of the house were so badly built as to tempt them to break through. The man was therefore to blame for the robbery. The man was brought before the magistrate. "The fault is not mine," said he, "but that of the builder, who made the mortar badly." The magistrate called the builder upon the potter who had sold him a cracked vessel in which he could not carry sufficient water to mix the mortar properly. The potter explained that the blame could not be laid upon him but upon a pretty woman, who, passing while he was making the vessel, so riveted his attention that he forgot about his work. The woman protested that the goldsmith was at fault. He had failed to send home her earrings and she passed the potter's shop on her way to get them. The goldsmith, not being able to offer an excuse for his neglect, was sentenced to be hanged. His friends begged the judge to spare him, as he was sick and ill favored, and would do make a pretty spectacle. "But somebody must be hanged," said the judge. His attention was thereupon called to a fat Moor in a shop opposite, and the judge ordered him to be hanged to the goldsmith's steel—Argentin.

In Hindustan, where three varieties of cereal monies enjoy the freedom of every town, those fair handed pensioners often assist the police in enforcing the riot laws by charging en masse for the scene of every dog fight and schoolboy scuffle. They will rescue worried cats and, for greater security, deposit them on the next roof, or express sympathy in general; the stout florid balcony for instance, being physically as well as morally qualified to quell the aggressive disposition of the ferocious cat. On the platform of a public warehouse the British residents of Agra, a few years ago, witnessed a scene which put the character trait in even a stronger light.

A little street Arab had spread his pallet in the shade of a stack of country produce, and had just dropped asleep, when the proprietor of the Planter's hotel strolled up with a jet leopard that had learned to accompany him in all his rambles. A troop of tramp monkeys had taken post on the opposite end of the shed, and, like the beggar boy, seemed to enjoy a comfortable life, but at sight of the speckled intruder the whole gang charged in a spirit of mischief and instantly forming a semicircle about the little sleeper, faced him hooped with bristling manes, evidently resolved to defeat the purpose of his visit.—Popular Science Monthly.

Collector: I have billed six times, sir, for the amount of this bill already.

Citizen: Why—at six times? Is it possible you have been paid to all that annoyance? Now, I'll tell you what I'll do: when I feel like paying the amount I will call on you myself. It's outrageous to give a man the trouble I have now, and you are not even paid.—[L.]

Her grandmother was an sick that the report got out that she was dead. A sympathetic old gentleman met the child on the street. "And when is your grandmother to be buried, my dear?" he asked her.

Beard, in the 70th year of his age. In the death of Joseph Beard Pocahontas county loses one of her ablest and most respected citizens, whose long and eventful life is honorably and inseparably identified with the history of the county. He was born in Greenbrier county, W. Va., on the 20th day of Sept., 1810, and removed to Pocahontas county in the year 1837. Early in life he was united in marriage to Mattie Jordan, daughter of John Jordan, Esq., with whom he happily lived till the day of his death, and who now survives him, an aged and happily widow. As the issue of this marriage were born three children; one son, John J. Beard, the present Clerk of the Courts of Pocahontas county, and two daughters, Mrs. Isaac McNeil, and Mrs. Wm. L. McNeil, now deceased.

In the year 1833 Mr. Beard made a profession of religion and connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1844 when the division came, Joseph Beard without hesitation cast his lot with the M. E. Church, South.

His life was marked with unusual energy and activity, but in no enterprise was his more manifest than in his labors for his Church. He was not a religious enthusiast, nor specially demonstrative, but unceasingly gave those better and more substantial evidences of a firm and abiding faith in Christ and his Church. In the prosecution of church work of every kind, he was always ready to do his part, and ever slow to suggest to others their duty when the occasion demanded. He was a man of firm convictions and decided opinions, yet ever maintained a liberal respect for the belief of others. There never lived more sincere man; deceit had no place in the make up of his character. Indeed his habit of telling the truth plainly, and his outspoken candor in commending the good and reproving evil sometimes falsified those who were not well acquainted with him to think him in any matters a harsh man, but he was not so; underneath the surface solid belief and rigid candor was hidden a heart as tender as the heart of a child, the sympathies of which responded to the gentlest touch. His generosity and hospitality were proverbial, the friend of the stranger were ever his warm guests, nor did he ever weary sharing the comforts of his home with as many as chose to partake them. He was possessed of a peculiarly happy nature; disappointment nor calamity could not bring before any time his cheerful spirit. It was his rule to always "his next and to be satisfied with it."

He will long and widely be missed, he was unfortunate and indulgent toward his kindred, and true in his friendship. He was a good and faithful citizen, ever ready to contribute in any manner to the good of city and of his country. But all will be missed by his church, whose interests were first his heart. His life is ended, but his memory will be a blessing to his kindred and to his country.

Bargaining Cattle.

My former article on the above subject seems to have excited no writer to, not only notice it, but to suggest two more very important improvements in the market sale and good appearance of other domestic animals. Such as the disposing of hogs and dehorning mules. Nothing can be plainer than the duty, if not the obligation of the proposer of these two improvements to enlighten the world by making a thoroughly desired improvements. The genius that prompted the suggestion ought to be equal to the execution or invention of plan of operation. I am still in favor of dehorning cattle and have practical proofs to show its merits every day. I have just learned from a reliable source that my friend Dick Henderson, of Kansas has removed the horns from 3,000 cattle last fall. I am reasoning in some boundary, horses, cows and bulls, with perfect safety; and now, after two months test, my animals look well in order, better in appearance and decidedly more comfortable to themselves and me. So far as I am interested, horns will have to go. The present hard times and dullness of the cattle market, demands a thoughtful consideration of every economical device or plan by which our farmers and stockmen may reduce their expenses and handle their stock to better advantage. I think this one step in that direction. I will now suggest one or two more, and would be very happy to have other and wiser heads to make an expression of their views and opinions thereby benefitting their fellow men and making the TIMES a necessity to every family in the country.

But few farmers in this locality that do not use fertilizers and believe that they pay; notwithstanding the heavy tax they are subjected to. What tax! Profits of the middle men, perhaps the largest. Thus excessive freight. To illustrate: none of our middlemen will handle and sell for less than a five dollar profit per ton, (often more,) then they secure another profit by charging their customers rates of freight per 100 lbs. when they get reduced rates per car-load of 10 tons. If you pay $3.00 per ton at the railroad to an agent, you can very readily see that you are paying $5.00 to $7.00 for agents profits and high freight, then if you buy an article, 10 per cent. to add on cost. The remedy is this, let our farmers pool their orders, select one of their number to get manufacturers to make bids for the order, and by paying just cash, get their fertilizers $10.00 in $12.00 per ton less. We all have numerous to blame for a great deal unnecessary tax. A co-operative style of buying and selling groceries, if nothing else would run down the expense of the farmer very materially. Every year. Salt now by car-load will only cost $1.30 per sack instead of $1.75 or $1.80.

Alderson vs. County Commissioners

Now that the fourth of March is rapidly drawing near, by which time the law requires that the governor shall issue his certificates to the congressional elect from this state, and in view of the fact that our Republican friends are claiming that McGinnis will undoubtedly represent this district in congress for the next four years, it may perhaps be well to review this matter which celebrated one. In the beginning, when the recount was demanded by Mr. Alderson, the county commissioners refused to allow him to appear by counsel, to introduce witnesses or to cross examine witnesses introduced by the Republicans, and refused to sign bills of exceptions until the supreme court, by a majority, required them to make a record. When Mr. Alderson procured an injunction restraining the county court from recording the result of the recount, as they ascertained it, until he could certiorari process drugs, the commissioners violated the injunction and certified the returns to the governor. That injunction is still in force. Judge Guthrie dissolved it, but Mr. Alderson took an appeal to the supreme court, where the case is still pending. As soon as possible after the bills of exceptions were signed, Alderson appealed to Judge Guthrie for a writ of certiorari, which he awarded, and the clerk of his court, who by the way, is a Republican, was directed to issue writ to the county commissioners, directing them to send up their record for review. The writ was not issued until about ten days after it was awarded. The record of the county court was copied and compared with the original, and the copy furnished to the commissioners to certify. The Star has from a reliable source that the commissioners kept the copy in their hands for ten days before delivering it to the clerk of the circuit court. Alderson's counsel demanded an immediate hearing of the case, but the court as the justice of counsel for McGinnis, postponed the case until February 1st. When that time arrived, McGinnis' counsel asked further delay, they well knowing that Judge Guthrie had to go to Mason county to hold court there on the following Monday. The case was argued for Alderson, and Judge Guthrie took the papers stating that the other side would be allowed to argue, and that the case would probably be decided when the term of court in Mason was over. No reflection is intended by the Star, upon Judge Guthrie, but everything goes to show that there has been a desire on the part of McGinnis' counsel to delay the proceedings as much as possible in order to prevent Mr. Alderson from having Judge Guthrie's decision, should it be adverse to him, reviewed by the supreme court, before the 4th of March. Mr. McGinnis' counsel and friends think their case in the best shape possible, and they are afraid of the superior court, well knowing that the partition action of the county court, must be reversed. The certificate now in the hands of the governor, from this county, is certainly void, and we feel sure that Governor Wilson will do what he conscientiously believes to be right in the premises. We would not presume to even suggest what he should do, but we can see but one course open, and that is, to issue a certificate before the fourth of March disregarding the certificate of the Kanawha county commissioners, regarding the result of the recount made by them. Mr. Alderson is elected by a majority of six votes, to give him the benefit of the recount. The bill of exceptions shows this to be true, and it seems to us that the recount is better evidence of the true result than a certificate made void by an injunction and certiorari proceedings. - Christian Star.

Now Day say we'll have to fight

Now Day say we'll have to fight Sheriff Smith. Well if nothing else will do, Uncle Sam says slap him over the ear with a rattan whip before breakfast.

The chance for war with Germany seems to be decreasing. We are not afraid of Germany, but peace is more to be desired than war.

National Library at Washington.

The "National Library" is a very extensive and valuable collection of books, maps, and other materials. It is located in Washington, D. C., and is open to the public. The library contains a large number of books, including many rare and valuable volumes. It is a great resource for scholars and researchers, and is a valuable asset to the nation. The library is managed by the National Library of Medicine, and is open to the public. The library contains a large number of books, including many rare and valuable volumes. It is a great resource for scholars and researchers, and is a valuable asset to the nation.

Another Bible that the library has is that printed for the Indians by John Eliot in 1663. This is the first Bible printed in America. It was printed in Cambridge, and is in the Indian tongue. The library has a chapter devoted to Bibles, and the chapter of theological works is the largest one in the library. I looked at this big bookcase of Bibles the other day; they are of all sizes and all shapes, from the little vest pocket edition to one big enough almost for a mounting block for horses. They are in all dialects and languages, and the Chinese Bibles look like so many bunches of manilla wrapping paper. The print of these Bibles is as queer as the languages in which they are printed, and they have every style of types, from the illuminated script of the monks of the middle ages to the common print of to day.

The manuscripts of the National Library include many valuable autographs. Among them are two autograph journals of George Washington, one of which was made during Bradfords expedition and one in 1787, at Mt. Vernon. There is a private journal of Arthur Lee while he was minister to France, at the breaking out of the revolution, and there are two volumes of an original military journal of Maj. Gen. Greene, written now over 100 years ago.

The National Library was founded about 1800, and the first installment of books was carried to Washington in trunks. They were ordered from London, and they cost altogether $1,000. Frank G. Carpenter in the Cosmopolitan.

The grand jury in Birmingham, Ala., has declined to indict Sheriff Smith, or any of his posse, for the killing of the persons who, with others, attacked the jail in that place on the night of the 5th of December last. The grand jury was three weeks investigating the matter and examined over two hundred witnesses. This is doubtless the end of the proceedings against the Sheriff and his associates.
